

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

A DESIRE having been expressed by several members of the ancient Society of the Woodmen of the Forest of Arden that the celebration of the centenary of the revival of that distinguished meeting should be signalised by the production in a permanent shape of the transactions of the past hundred years, a committee was appointed for that purpose, and the present Editor was selected to compile the book under their direction. He has performed this labour of love to the best of his ability, and has to acknowledge with thanks the assistance he has received from the other members of the committee, especially the Rev. C. Coker Beck, from the Secretaries of the Affiliated Societies, from the Clerk of the Peace for the county of Warwick, and from many other gentlemen, without whose aid the volume would have been a more imperfect memorial of the interesting past than he fears it will even now be considered.

RECORDS OF THE WOODMEN OF ARDEN.

DUGDALE in his History of Warwickshire observes that Warwickshire is divided by the river Avon, which enters the shire at the north-east and leaves it at the south-west, into the Woodland, and the Feldon or open country. The former of these divisions had the name of Arden, and was also termed the Forest, although it is questionable whether there ever existed a forest in the special sense in which we speak of the New Forest, Sherwood, or Windsor. Thus the boundaries of Arden at one time seem to have reached, if they did not include, Needwood, Charnwood, and Cannock Chase; while in later times they have been so far restricted by common usage that the commendable little history of the Forest of Arden, published in 1863, does not include the scene of the periodical meetings of the ancient Society who still perpetuate the name and the traditions of the Wardens of the Forest. This is strange when we read in Dugdale that Astley Church, still more to the north of the county, was called the "Lanthorn of Arden"—from its ancient steeple, destroyed in 1600, having been a famous landmark in the woodland, "where the ways are not easy to hit"—and when we view in the park at Packington ancient oaks whose acorns may well have produced the timber of Nelson's or Duncan's wooden walls. At any rate local tradition, in such matters the best guide, identifies with the villages of Meriden and Packington the associations of archery which form so much of the romance of forest-life in England.

The butts which stood in the neighbourhood of every village, where the male population of the country were enjoined by law to assemble for practice in archery, have long since disappeared, but have left their name in various situations in Warwickshire as in other counties. That the Packington outwoods should have afforded a favourite exercise-ground for such a purpose is not surprising, when a fine of 6s. 8d. was imposed upon every shot at a stationary mark unless at the full distance of eleven score yards —except at rovers, where the mark was changed at every shot. It is clear that a considerable range was essential to the fulfilment of this injunction, and the mode in which the competition was held has been described with picturesque accuracy by an excellent English author, himself a Woodman of the Forest of Arden.<sup>1</sup> Gradually, as fire-arms superseded the bow, the old shooting-grounds fell into disuse, the turf was no longer "eaten bare by the arrows of archers" in the outskirts of our large towns, and country places took to other and less commendable sports at the wake or revel. Just at the conclusion of the last century, however, in the lull of prosperity and tranquil progress which the country experienced between the close of the American and the outbreak of the great French wars, a revival of archery took place, in which the midland counties bore an honourable rivalry with the metropolis and the ancient societies of the north.

On Nov. 15, 1785, at the Bull's Head, Meriden, was held the first meeting of the Woodmen of the Forest of Arden.

Present,—The Earl of Aylesford, Captain ; Mr York, Lieutenant ; Mr Lewis ; Mr William Dilke ; Mr Charles Dilke ; Mr Digby, Secretary. At this meeting Messrs Moland and Bree were elected members of the Society, and it was adjourned to Wednesday, Dec. 14, at the same place, at three o'clock, for elections.

Meetings were held in 1786 on Jan. 13 (postponed in February on account of snow) and April 17, at which the newly formed Society resolved that the freedom of the grounds belonging to this Society be granted to the members of the Toxophilite Society in London.

On June 17, styled “Fence month”<sup>1</sup> in the minute-book, it was resolved that the Freedom of the Toxophilite Society in London, presented to the Earl of Aylesford, and by his lordship communicated to this Society, be deposited among the archives of this Society. Resolved, that the thanks of this Society be presented to the Earl of Aylesford for the targets which his lordship has had the goodness to present to this Society. Resolved, that the form of the diploma granting the freedom of the grounds belonging to this Society to the members of the Toxophilite Society in London is approved, and is hereby directed to be forthwith sent to Sir Ashton Lever, President ; and that the secretary is hereby directed to accompany the same with a letter to Sir Ashton, cordially to invite him and all members of the Toxophilite Society to associate with us, and to partake of the privileges of our butts, &c. ; and that the said diploma be enclosed in a box of heart of oak, the growth of the Forest, and be tied with a green riband ; and resolved, that the Target of this day, which was obliged to be deferred on account of the weather, be shot to-morrow, the 18th day of fence month, if fair—if not, on Friday next. Elections took place on July 17, July 21, and July 24.

On Aug. 18, 1786, it was resolved unanimously that the Earl of Aylesford be requested to accept the office of Perpetual Warden. Accepted on the part of Lord Aylesford. Resolved unanimously, that in future, whoever shall hit the gold first at the Grand Target shall be styled for the year ensuing Master Forester; whoever shall hit the gold second shall be styled for the year ensuing Senior Verdurer; and whoever shall hit the gold at any of the three General Targets of the Society shall be styled a Verdurer of the Forest for ever.

On Aug. 30 was held the great annual Wardmote, when certain rules and orders were passed, and subscribed by the Woodmen present. These were:—

I. That the members of the Society shall meet at the Bull's Head at Meriden, for shooting and other business of the Society, every Monday and Friday, from the Monday in Easter week to the last Friday in October, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon during the months of April, May, September, and October, and at five o'clock in the afternoon during the months of June, July, and August; and shall meet to dine together during the winter, on such days as shall be appointed at the October Target meeting.

II. That each member shall annually subscribe at the first Spring meeting one guinea, half of which shall be applied to the Targets and incidental expenses, and the remainder towards the expences of the winter dinners.

III. That none but members shall be permitted to shoot at any meeting of the Society, nor shall any member shoot but with arrows mark'd with such marks as shall be by him given to the Secretary on or before the first Spring meeting next ensuing, or at the time of his admission, nor unless dressed in his uniform, coat, hat, and belt.

IV. That the uniform of this Society shall consist of a green coat, white waistcoat, and breeches, with the Arden button, in which every member shall appear at the shooting of every Target, and at every meeting.

V. That any gentleman desireous of becoming a member of the Society shall be proposed at a regular meeting, and the election shall be by Ballot at the next meeting, which shall consist of two-thirds of the Society, or of nine members; and, unless there shall be two black balls, such candidate shall be declared duly elected, whereupon he shall pay his admission fee of one guinea to the general fund, as well as his proportion of subscription for the current year, and shall furnish himself with a uniform, bow, arrows, and such other necessary articles for archery as are now used by the Society.

VI. That there shall be three Targets shot by the members of the Society annually. One on the Monday in Easter week; another on the last Monday in June; and the third (which shall be call'd the annual Target) on the last Friday of August.

VII. That if two shooters shall happen to be in the gold at the same end, the nearest to the centre shall be deemed the Captain; and in like manner shall the Lieutenant's prizes be determined.

VIII. That all disputes shall be determined by the Warden and Master Forester and Secretary; but if either of them shall happen to be absent, or interested in the dispute, it shall be determined (in his or their stead) by one or more of the members who shoot next in order by ballot.

IX. That besides these general rules, the Bylaws which shall hereafter be made by the Society shall likewise be observ'd as part of these orders.

X. That no alteration in or abrogation of these rules shall take place, or new ones be made, save and except at the General Targets, until such alteration, abrogation, or new law shall have been proposed and seconded at one regular meeting, and stuck up in the Room belonging to the Society, and approv'd of by three-fourths of the members of the Society present at a subsequent meeting.

XI. The following order of Precedency shall be observ'd at all Wardmotes and Targets: The Warden, the Master Forester, the Secretary, the Senior Verdurer, the Verdurers in order as they obtain that dignity.

XII. That a Wardmote shall consist of nine Woodmen, of whom the Warden, Master Forester, Secretary, or Senior Verdurer shall be one, or, in their absence, at least two Verdurers of the Forest shall be present. And that no business respecting the Forest be transacted except at such Wardmote. But that each of the days of Repealed. the General Targets be considered as a general Wardmote, in which any business relating to the Forest may be propos'd and ballotted for without previous notice.

Signed by 44 Woodmen.

At a meeting on Nov. 6, 1786, it was ordered that a Committee be appointed, and empowered to contract for a proper and convenient spot for a Shooting-ground, and for erecting Butts thereon, and other conveniences, for the use of the Society; and that the Warden, the Secretary, and Mr Moland be of the said Committee, the determination of the majority of whom to be final.<sup>1</sup> Order'd, that the Freedom of this Society be presented to the Royal Company of Archers in Scotland.

At a Wardmote held on Friday, April 20, 1787, it was ordered that no member be called upon to subscribe during his absence from the kingdom in his Majesty's service. Prizes at the Targets—Outer White, 1s. ; Black, 1s. 6d. ; Inner White, &c., 2s. Captain and Lieutenant's prizes according to the state of the fund.

At a Wardmote on Thursday, Aug. 10, 1787, it was ordered that the Bugle-horn presented to this Society by the Warden of the Forest be thankfully accepted by the Woodmen; and that the Rules transmitted therewith be adopted by this Society, and enter'd amongst the Bye-Laws of the Forest. That the Secretary be requested to transmit to the Warden of the Forest the most cordial acknowledgements of this Society for the very flattering mark of his attention in presenting them with the Bugle-horn, to be shot for annually according to the Rules this day incorporated into the Bye-Laws of this Society.

BYE-LAWS.

RULES TO BE OBSERVED IN SHOOTING FOR THE BUGLE-HORN OF ARDEN.

1. That none be admitted to shoot for the Bugle-horn but Woodmen of the Forest, having their names and marks entered on the Forest Roll.

2. That the Bugle-horn be shot for on some day in the months of July and August, to be fixed at the Target in June.

3. That the Bugle shall be won by him who gains three successive shots; but as it may happen none of the Archers may gain three successive shots, it is declared that he who shall have gained the most shots (provided it is before settled how many ends shall be shot, or at what hour it shall be concluded) shall win the Bugle. If any two or more Archers in that case shall have gained equal shots, they shall shoot one end by themselves, and he that has the best shot shall be the winner.

4. That the winner of the Bugle-horn shall wear the same at all Targets of the Forest, and wherever he pleases within the Forest; and shall keep it till the Target in June of the next year, after which he shall deliver it to the Secretary of the Forest, with his badge annexed to it.

5. That the winner of the Bugle-horn shall enact himself, in a book to be kept for the purpose, to return the same to the Secretary of the Forest, with his badge affixed thereto.

6. That the Bugle-horn shall not be shot for unless by a Wardmote, and that Wardmote shall have power to adjourn the shooting in case of bad weather only.

7. That a Book of record be kept of the days when the Bugle is gain'd, and by whom, and of the names of the Woodmen who shot for it, and of the Badge affixed thereto.

8. That the Bugle shall not be shot for at a shorter distance than 9 score yards, nor a greater than 12 score yards—the distance for the next shooting to be determined at the June Target by lot, the manner of casting the lot to be in this manner: Seven lots to be made at the distances from 9 to 12 score inclusive, each lot to increase from 9 score by half a score; the Senior Officer present shall draw one of these lots, which shall be the distance at which it shall be shot.

At the great annual Wardmote held on Meriden Heath on Friday, Aug. 31, 1787, order'd that the Secretary be requested to return the thanks of this Society to the Kentish Bowmen for the freedom of their Society presented to us. That the freedom of this Society be presented to the Kentish Bowmen.

On Oct. 22, 1787, Mr Digby, the Secretary, enters in his private Diary—"Staked out ye new hall for Woodmen." It was completed in 1788, from the design of Signor Bonomi, an Italian architect, and its internal effect is extremely pleasing. In the coved ceiling the word Arden, transfix'd by an arrow, as on the seal and medals of the Society, is surrounded by a wreath of oak-leaves in relief. The dimensions of the room, which is oblong with the corners cut off, are 39 feet by 24 feet 6 inches. The corners thus afford accommodation to the Secretary's office, the dressing-rooms, and the kitchen. Round the hall are ranged the Aschams of the Woodmen, each bearing its owner's mark on the Forest Roll.<sup>1</sup>

On Jan. 19, 1788, order'd that the latter part of the 14th (xiith) rule (from the words, "But that each of the days," to the end) be repeal'd, and that no business respecting the Forest be transacted at any of the General Targets or the day of shooting for the Bugle. That an anniversary meeting be held in the Forest on the 15th day of November (unless it shall fall on a Sunday, and in that case on the day following), in commemoration of the day on which, after a long interval, a Wardmote was first held by the Woodmen of the Antient Forest of Arden. That such Woodmen as shall be in London on Tuesday the 13th of May, shall dine together at the Thatch'd House in St James's Street at five o'clock, and that the Woodmen who mean to attend be desir'd to send their names to the bar of the said Tavern the day before.

On June 27, it was resolved at a Wardmote that the number of the Woodmen of Arden be limited to 75.

On Aug. 15, in the same year, the Warden presented to the Society the diploma from the Royal Company of Archers of Scotland.

On the 22d of the same month the Bugle-horn was shot for at 10 score yards by 13 Woodmen, and won by the Dilke (26 Woodmen were present, but the number who shot for it is not recorded). Resolved, that the Secretary do return the thanks of the Woodmen of Arden to Lady Aylesford for having done them the honour to present them with the Silver Arrow. That the Silver Arrow be shot for annually, according to the rules of shooting for the Bugle, except that the distance be always 9 score.

At the anniversary Wardmote on Nov. 15, 1788, it was resolved that in some conspicuous part of the Hall there shall be a regular table kept of all Woodmen who shall have gained any of the offices in the Forest, or any of the prizes. That the Secretary do return the thanks of the Woodmen to the Royal Archers of Scotland for their friendly invitation to shoot for all their prizes.

In 1789, at a Wardmote on the 23d March, it was resolved that the first meeting for the ensuing season (after the Easter Target) be on Monday the 27th April, and that the meetings be held every other Monday till the 1st June, every Monday during the months of June, July, and August, and every other Monday during the months of September and October.

On April 17, resolved, that the Woodmen who shall be in town on Monday the 11th May, dine together at five o'clock, at Le Tellier's, Dover Street (a similar resolution was annually passed until 1797). Resolved, that those Woodmen who shall be so fortunate as to be in the Forest, dine together on that day at Meriden.

On Monday, Aug. 3, it was resolved to grant the freedom of the Forest to the Society meeting at Lord Ducie's in Gloucestershire. To grant the freedom of the Forest to the Hertfordshire Society, meeting at Lord Salisbury's. Resolved, that the winner of the Bugle-horn of Arden and of the Silver Arrow shall be entitled to add the same to his mark on the Forest Roll.

On Monday, Aug. 24, the Bugle-horn was shot for at 12 score yards by 10 Woodmen, and won by the Warden in 3 successive shots (on this occasion four of the Royal Kentish Bowmen were present, one of whom was the Rev. James Dodd, author of 'Ballads of Archery'). See Appendix.

On Monday, Aug. 31, 20 Woodmen shot for the Arrow, which was won by the Warden, gaining most shots in 15 ends. Resolved, that whoever shall have hit the gold at any of the three General Targets, won the Bugle-horn or Silver Arrow, or put an arrow into the clout in shooting for either of them, shall be stiled a Verdurer of the Forest for ever.

On Monday, April 19, 1790, the thanks of the Society were voted to the Countess of Aylesford for a present of table linen spun in the Forest of Arden.

At a Wardmote held June 28, 1790, being the second Target, resolved, that the thanks of this Society be given to Stephen Sullivan, Esq., for his present of Indian bows and arrows. Also to Mr Croxall, Verdurer of the Forest, for his present of a bow formerly belonging to the King of Zola. The Secretary reported that at the annual meeting of the several Societies of Archers in Great Britain on Blackheath, the 21st May last, there were present, and shot at the target belonging to the Woodmen of Arden, C. E. Repington, V.; W. Palmer, V.; T. Fetherston, V.; R. Gresley, V.; E. Finch, V.; C. Dilke, V.; T. Palmer, V.; and that of the four prizes shot for, the first was gained by Mr W. Palmer, the second by Mr T. Palmer, and the fourth by Mr E. Finch, who was appointed Steward for the Woodmen of Arden for next year. (See Appendix—Blackheath Meetings.)

On Aug. 20 the Silver Arrow was won by the Warden

by 6 shots in 15 ends (24 Woodmen were present; the number who competed is not stated). The Secretary reported that he had, in obedience to the directions of the Society, purchased a silver cup of the price of £24, and presented the same to Mr Wedge in the name of the Woodmen of Arden, and that he was desired by him to return his most grateful acknowledgments for the honour conferred upon him.

On Aug. 23 the Bugle was shot for at 10 score yards, and won by W. Palmer by 3 shots in 11 ends. 19 competed.

On Sept. 20 it was resolved that the freedom of this Society be given to the Broughton Society, and to the Lancashire Bowmen, and also to the Royal Southampton Archers. That the meeting of the Societies of Broughton, the Lancashire Bowmen, and the Woodmen of Arden, in a convenient place in Staffordshire in the month of July 1791, be approved. (See Appendix—Cannock Meetings.) That the appointment of Asheton Curzon, Esq., to be president of the meeting, is approved, and that the thanks of the Woodmen of Arden be conveyed to him for his acceptance of the office. That no person be allow'd to shoot at the Butts except those who have so subscribed.

On Nov. 15 it was resolved that the Secretary be directed to defray the expences incurred by this Society at the general meeting of Archers on Blackheath in May last. Little), E. Finch, W. Palmer, T. Palmer, C. E. Repington, R. Gresley, T. Fetherston, F. Philips; and that the first prize was won by W. Palmer, and the second by the Warden; and that W. Palmer was appointed Steward for the Woodmen of Arden for the next year.

On Monday, Aug. 29, the Arrow was won by W. Palmer, gaining 3 shots in 7 ends. 32 Woodmen present.

On Monday, Sept. 5, the Bugle was won at 10 score by the Warden, gaining 3 shots in 11 ends. 22 Woodmen present.

On June 26, 1792 (by adjournment from the 25th, being the day of the meeting at Warwick for the county address on the proclamation—i.e., of war with France), it was resolved that the Secretary be desired to procure a small Gold Bugle and Arrow, as prizes for the ladies on the days of shooting for the Bugle and Arrow of the Forest of Arden.

Stanton won the third medal as Captain of the Target. The Warden of the Forest was appointed Steward for the Woodmen of Arden for next year.

On Monday, July 30, the following amendment of the Rules was adopted: That on the day of balloting, the list of candidates to be balloted for shall be read over, and that each Woodman present shall put into a hat a list of as many candidates as there are vacancies, and whoever has

THE HONOURS OF THE SOCIETY.

THE BUGLE.

THE first in date and most highly prized of all the distinctions possessed by the Woodmen of Arden is the Bugle, one of the handsomest pieces of plate, though not the oldest, belonging to any Archery Club. It measures 10½ inches from one mouthpiece to the other, and the diameter of the larger end is 3 inches. It weighs, with its appurtenances, 4 lb. 1½ oz., the weight of the Bugle itself being 1½ lb. Round the larger end is the legend, in antique letters, “Win me and wear me,” below which is the device of the Society—Ar-den, divided by an arrow, and surrounded by an oak-wreath: a silver ring from the lower centre of the Bugle sustains a green silk tassel. The engraving is from an illumination in a volume in which are recorded the names of the winners, emblazoned by Heneage, fourth Earl of Aylesford, the founder of the Society and the donor of the prize. The appurtenances of the Bugle consist of a buff baldric 2½ inches broad, edged with silver lace, and fastened by a gold buckle 3½ inches in diameter, bearing the Society’s device as before. From this depend two silver chains to hold the Bugle, and forty-two circular medals, rather more than an inch in diameter, bearing names and arms, crests or devices of winners. The winners wear a decoration presented by Sir Francis Shuckburgh, bearing the motto, "Win me and wear me." The following is a list of the medals :—

THE CAPTAIN AND LIEUTENANT OF NUMBERS'
MEDALS (GOLD AND SILVER) .

Were presented in 1818 by the first Secretary, Wriothesley Digby, Esq., and are of a similar die to the Master Forester's Medal, but bear on their reverse,—the gold, Optime merenti; the silver, Bene merenti. A list of the winners is appended, with the number of hits, when recorded in the book, and the number of ends—four arrows each—since 1853. The latter information has been supplied by the Rev. C. C. Beck, whose own record of performances at the target, equally brilliant and lasting, stamps him as the best archer the Society has yet produced, although he concedes the palm to Mr F. Townsend, whose extraordinary scores from 1857 to 1862 form quite an episode in the shooting of the Society, though his average even at that period was not much superior to that of Mr Beck.

PHILOTOXI ARDENÆ;
THE
WOODMEN OF ARDEN;
A LATIN POEM:

By JOHN MORFITT, Esq. BARRISTER AT LAW.

WITH
A TRANSLATION in BLANK VERSE;
Another in RHYME;
ATTEMPTED IN THE MANNER OF DRYDEN,
And dedicated (by Permission) to the RIGHT HONOURABLE the COUNTESS of AYLESFORD:

AND
An ESSAY on the Superiority of DRYDEN'S Versification
over that of Pope and of the Moderns;

By JOSÉPH WESTON.

Waller was smooth, but DRYDEN taught to join
The varying Verse—the full resounding Line—
The long, majestic March—and ENERGY DIVINE!

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE following Lines were written merely for the Amusement of a private Circle; but, an ingenious Friend having honoured them with a double Version, I hereby submit them to the Eye of the Public: in Hopes that any Languor in the Original will be atoned for by the Spirit of the Translations, and the judicious Criticism contained in the manly Essay that accompanies them.

Should they tend, in the least degree, to promote the truly British Exercise of ARCHERY, the Author's most sanguine Expectations will be answered. The Landscape described in the Opening shews that they were written in a Summer Month, and the Scene is laid in the FOREST OF ARDEN, near PACKINGTON-HALL, the Seat of the Right Honourable the EARL OF AYLESFORD.

—THEOC.

FAREWELL, hoarse Quarrels of the Bar ! The Fraud
 Of Courts, with ever-bending Knee, and all
 The dusty Cohort of the Great, farewell !
 Still let them live, still flourish, in the City,
 By me unenvied ; me, whom—far remote
 From Noise—the Country, bright with Dew, detains.

Let British Cicero thunder against Verres,
 All Decency disdaining ; and let Fox,
 Vehement Fox, press after, bellowing loud !
 Here Quiet reigns ; who me, long lost in Grief,
 Has to myself restor'd : here reigns secure.
 Quiet ! Sole Medicine to a Mind diseas'd !
 Here 'tis allow'd me, wrapt in Meditation,
 (On what I know not) to deceive the Day,
 And bury Suns, as Flaccus did before me.
 Here is soft Sleep, that Nothing but the Sparrow,
 Th' unlucky Sparrow, or the murmuring Zephyr,
 Can violate.—There stands an elmy Row,
 Which may protect me by abundant Shade
 What Time the Grasshopper, all faint with Heat,

Herbæ quām redolent siccæ ! vix visa sub albis
 Nubibus, exercet Carmen Alauda suum.
 Omnia sunt Cordi : Mihi sunt jucundus Apollo,

 With Dust of squalid Learning ; but with thee,

 At Hand, on Columns awfully sublime,
 Grand rise the Halls which Finch<sup>2</sup> himself inhabits—

 Himself yet more illustrious : in whose Eye
 The Country smiles, and Cloven-footed Choir.<sup>3</sup>

 With rosy Blood, her Lilies blush'd : when Edward,

WOODMEN OF ARDEN;

A POEM:

(ATTEMPTED IN THE MANNER OF DRYDEN)

From the LATIN of JOHN MORFITT, Esq.

WITH

An ESSAY on the Superiority of DRYDEN's Versification
over that of Pope and of the Moderns;

By JOSÉPH WESTON.

Waller was smooth, but DRYDEN taught to join
The varying Verse—the full resounding Line—
The long, majestic March—and ENERGY DIVINE!

POPE.

MADAM,

WERE I to pursue the beaten Path of Dedication, I should not miss so favourable an Opportunity of expatiating on the inviting Topicks of BIRTH, RANK, BEAUTY, TALENTS, and ACCOMPLISHMENTS; but ill should I deserve the enviable Privilege which I have obtained—of prefixing to this Page so ILLUSTRIOUS a Name—were I capable of taking the Advantage of your Ladyship's Condescension to violate the Delicacy of your Feelings.

Nor would I wish, by an unnecessary Discussion of a Subject on which only ONE Person can possibly need Information, to leave an Opening for general Animadversion; for—though to draw humble Merit, from the chilling Shade of Obscurity, into the cheering Sunshine of public Favour, might be to do essential Service to Mankind—assuredly, to make a formal Blazon of GRACES and of VIRTUES which have so long attracted UNIVERSAL ATTENTION would be justly considered by the World as a most impertinent Work of Supererogation.

If an Exactness bordering on Servility should seem to have been the Object of the PRECEDING Translation, the FOLLOWING one may boast, MADAM, of having aimed at a nobler Mark; and happy shall I be, if, in attempting to imitate the paraphrastic and unequal, but GENEROUS and DARING Manner of the immortal DRYDEN, I shall be found to have caught even the smallest Portion of a Spirit so TRULY DIVINE!

*I have the Honour to be,
With the most lively Gratitude,
MADAM,
Your Ladyship's most obedient,
And devoted Servant,
J. WESTON.*

TO neglect the modern Stile of Versification—to overlook even that which POPE introduced—and, professedly, to copy from the old-fashioned Model of DRYDEN—will excite some Degree of Surprise among those who take for granted that POETIC DICTION has, since his Time, received considerable Improvement.—But, to confess the Truth, I cannot help thinking that ENGLISH RHYME was brought by that wonderful Man to the Acme of Perfection; and that it has been, for many Years, gradually declining from GOOD to indifferent—and from indifferent to BAD.

I am not unaware that a Sentiment so unfavourable to most of my Contemporaries, and so opposite to Prejudices long received and obstinately retained, will, probably, be considered as the rash and romantic Assertion of a vain and presumptuous INNOVATOR, and be treated with all the Severity usually exercised against Notions which are looked upon as heterodox.—But such Severity would be flagrant Injustice.—The Opinion which I have expressed is neither dictated by Vanity nor prompted by an Affectation of Singularity; but is, in Fact, the Result of much Reflection and of very minute Investigation.

To do Justice to the Subject would be to extend a Preface—to a VOLUME; but it may not be unnecessary to prove that I have not hazarded so bold a Declaration on slight Grounds: and that, while I endeavour to convince my Reader, I am, at least, convinced myself.

The Poetry of DRYDEN, though allowed to be, in general, CORRECT, ENERGETIC, and HARMONIOUS, is also said to be sometimes

CARELESS, LANGUID, and PROSAIC; in Fine, (to use his own Words, when speaking of MILTON,) he is charged with having “Flats among his Elevations.”—They who bring the Charge usually accompany it with an Exclamation of “how unfortunate was the “poor Man, whose Necessities compelled him to precipitate his “Works to the Press in so unfinished a State!”

I will admit the Justice of the Accusation, but wave, as entirely unnecessary, the Apology.—Poor he certainly was—to the never-dying INFAMY of the Age which he so splendidly adorned; but his Poverty has little to do with the Question in Debate.—Many of his Lines seem, 'tis true, to have wanted his last Touches; but those last Touches, I am persuaded, were not hastily NEGLECTED—but deliberately DENIED. His intuitive Judgment, doubtless, suggested that all Things figure but by COMPARISON; and that even EXCELLENCE, undiversified, must, at length, FATIGUE. He, therefore, subdued his Stile occasionally—to burst upon his Reader with the greater Splendour, when the Subject demanded a LOFTIER LAY.

But how reconcile this Supposition to his Remark respecting MILTON—which seems to imply that no FLATS should be admitted among the ELEVATIONS?—Very easily.—Steadiness and Consistency were, by no Means, Characteristics of the Doctrines which DRYDEN promulgated, in his numerous Prefaces;—Doctrines which he varied, without much Scruple, as Times or Circumstances changed: and, in the present Case, Dread of MILTON’s superior Genius, and Detestation of his political Principles, might, reasonably, be supposed somewhat to pervert his natural Candour, and somewhat to bias his wonted Impartiality.

The Poetry of POPE, though less enriched by CLASSICAL KNOWLEDGE, and less illumined by VIVID IMAGINATION, appears, however, at first sight, to greater Advantage than that of DRYDEN; as it is, certainly, more elaborately correct, and more mechanically regular—more delicately polished, and more systematically dignified.—But are these really Advantages?—Let us examine.

Does the skilful PAINTER bring all his Figures forward on the Canvas, and bestow the last Hand upon every Part of the Picture ?

Does the MUSICIAN cloy the Ear with an eternal Succession of harmonious Sounds, uncontrasted by the dire but necessary Discords ?

Does the Ornament of the STAGE lavish Emphasis, Expression, Attitude, and Action upon every Line of every Sentence ?

Does the BEAUTY of a BIRTH-NIGHT concentrate all her Jewels (unrelieved by Interstices of black Velvet) in one INTOLERABLE BLAZE ?

Would the FACE OF CREATION appear more lovely, were it—instead of “rising into Inequalities, diversified by the varied “Exuberance of abundant Vegetation”—to exhibit one immensurable “Velvet Lawn, shaven by the Scythe, and levelled by the “Roller” ?

Why then must POETRY adopt a preposterous Plan of Equalisation which her SISTER MUSES reject with Scorn—and aspire to an imaginary Perfection, alike unknown to NATURE and to ART ?

The Question seems to lie in so small a Compass, and to be so easy of Determination, that one feels inclined to enquire how so absurd a Notion could possibly gain a Footing, and maintain its Ground, in an Age so polished and enlightened as to have acquired the Title of AUGUSTAN ?—Great Events, 'tis certain, arise sometimes from very trivial Causes ; but never, surely, was so important a Revolution in the Parnassian Realms produced by means so utterly contemptible !

When DRYDEN's Sun was set, darting its* brightest Ray at its Departure, POPE was beginning to dawn on the poetical Hemis-sphere.—A young Man of lively Talents, with a peculiar “Knack “ at Rhyming,” could not fail to attract the Notice of many would-be Mæcenases; among others, one WALSH undertook to usher this rising Genius into the World: he did more; he affected to point out a Way, by which his Pupil should surpass all who had gone before him.—“Mr POPE, (said he) there is one Path as yet entirely “ untrodden—the Path of Correctness: DRYDEN was a great Poet “ —but he had not Leisure to be correct.—Seize the glorious “ Opportunity; supply the Deficiency, and be immortal!”

In an evil Hour did the ambitious young Bard hearken to the fatal Advice of “knowing Walsh” (as he somewhere calls him); and, hoping to supply this supposed Deficiency, he began to labour, and stiffen, and polish, and refine: till, having discarded whatever seemed loose, or languid, or harsh, or prosaic, his Verse flowed in one equal, smooth, mellifluous Stream; marked by an almost total Want of that VARIETY of Pause, Accent, Cadence, and Diction, so eminently conspicuous in his incomparable Predecessor, and so absolutely essential to the Harmony of true Poetry.

The Thought is so seldom suffered to stray beyond the Bounds of the Couplet, and so frequently wire-drawn merely to end with it—one Part of a Line so exactly reflects the other—and there is such a Paucity of Triplets and of Alexandrines, (the Break, too, in the latter, so regularly at the sixth Syllable,)—that even the most ingenious Allusions, the most striking, beautiful, and graceful Imagery, the most perspicuous and pointed good Sense, and the most elegant and nervous Expression—with all their Powers united—find it difficult to render the tiresome UNIFORMITY of his VERIFICATION supportable.

To the officious Interposition of this same WALSH, then, we are indebted for the Contamination of the HELICONIAN FOUNTAIN, for near a Century! Risum teneatis?

But so material a Change in the Constitution of Poetry could not be expected to take Place, without some literary Convulsions. The Disciples of DRYDEN were ardent in their Veneration, formidable by their Numbers, and respectable by their Rank.—Violent was the Clamour, and tedious was the Contest.—POPE, however, in the End—by Means not very honourable indeed—proved triumphant.

In the course of my Researches, I have found considerable Amusement, (though alloyed, in no small Degree, by a Mixture of Scorn and Indignation,) in tracing and developing the insidious Arts which he suffered his Friends to practise, in order to undermine the Reputation of the deceased Poet, and to asperse the Characters of his living Supporters; and if a Work, which, for a longer Term of Years than that prescribed by HORACE, has been incarcerated in my Closet, should ever escape into Light, POPE's Goodness of Heart would be no longer problematical :—at present, I shall content myself with observing, that HE, while the injured DRYDEN sunk in the public Estimation, was exalted to the vacant Chair, and proposed as a bright EXEMPLAR to all succeeding Bards.

But, as HE was supposed to have improved upon his Master, OUR Poets seem ambitious of improving upon theirs.—HE rejected every Thing that was not rich; THEY reject every Thing that is not brilliant.—HE is every where clear and manly; THEY not unfrequently torture into Obscurity, and refine into Imbecility.

To confirm and illustrate my Observation, by selecting Instances of harsh Construction and fantastic Inversion—Tinsel Phrases and tinkling Compound-Epithets—were a Task as easy as it were unpleasant and unwise.—The Genus irritabile Vatum is proverbial; and I shall, probably, find Inconvenience enough, from having disturbed the Hornet's Nest, by a GENERAL Censure, without the additional Imprudence of pulling it about my Ears by a PARTICULAR ENUMERATION.—Suffice it, therefore, to observe, that the modern System appears decisively to exclude every Mode of Expression from Poetry which is so unlucky as to find a Place in Prose.

Let me not be misunderstood.—POETIC DICTION, and that ALONE, is the Object of my Reprobation ; nor, even in that Department, am I insensible of some very splendid EXCEPTIONS: but flatter myself, as the Influence of their Example gradually expands, that I shall still live to see the apparent NEGLIGENCE but real ART—the dignified SIMPLICITY—the unaffected SUBLIMITY—and the endless VARIETY of the PRINCE OF RHYME (as MR. HAYLEY justly stiles him) once more shine forth, in the Fullness of Beauty—the Admiration of all—but cold, mechanical VERSIFIERS, and tasteless, blind IDOLATORS!

My Zeal has already carried me beyond the Limits which I proposed to myself ; but, having mentioned the ALEXANDRINE, I feel an irresistible Impulse to employ a few more Pages in an attempt to emancipate one of the brightest Ornaments of English Versification from those Shackles which POPE imposed, and which his SUCCESSORS seem determined to perpetuate.

THEY, with one Consent, divide the Alexandrine into equal Parts ; and the facetious Manufacturers of those Treatises which so ridiculously pretend to teach the Art of Poetry (as if POETS, like PEERS, not happening to be born such, could be made !) aver that it ought to be so divided.—The Pigmies would scarcely deserve Confutation ; but a GIANT has thrown down his Gauntlet, in the same Cause ; and, if I hesitate while I take it up, I hesitate from RESPECT—not FEAR.—This redoubtable Critic has, for once at least, substituted dogmatical Assertion for Argument and Truth ; and HE is, surely, little to be dreaded, who, (as if grown wanton by Success, and confident of Victory without a Blow,) attempting to appal by empty Sounds, discards his ponderous Spear, and his enormous Shield !

But let us hear.—In the Life of DRYDEN, he remarks—“the Alexandrine, though much his Favourite, is not always very diligently fabricated by him. It invariably requires a Break at “the sixth syllable ; a Rule which the modern FRENCH POETS never violate, but which DRYDEN sometimes neglected :

Si sic OMNIA dixisset—Dr. JOHNSON would scarcely have been considered as an Arbiter Elegiariarum in Poetry; for a weaker Paragraph was never penned.—It is open and unguarded, at all Points.—The Principle is false; the Authority insufficient; and the Example the most unfortunate that could have been adduced.—

'Tis pleasant to find the good Doctor appealing to the Practice of that Nation, against whose Decisions he has, on so many Occasions, protested; and 'tis equally pleasant to find him bringing forward, as an Instance of DRYDEN'S Negligence, a Line, which—for harmonic Energy—has not a Superior!—I would defy even the melodious Voice, and matchless Judgment, of a SEWARD—with all her known Partiality for POPE—to convey more Fascination into her Favourite's finest Line than that already possesses which is the Object of Dr. JOHNSON'S Censure; Censure—which will, probably, be considered as of no very great Importance, when proceeding from one who cannot, reasonably, be supposed to have studied with any extraordinary Attention that Species of Verse which (for aught that appears to the contrary) he never attempted to fabricate:—since—in his WHOLE WORKS—it would be as arduous a task to find an Alexandrine—as an immoral Expression!

Nor will an Advocate for VARIETY, who treats even the high Authority of POPE with so little Ceremony, be expected to pay much Deference to the mere gratis dictum of his slavish IMITATOR! An Imitator so very slavish—though equal to his Original in SMOOTHNESS, and superior, perhaps, in STRENGTH—that his collected Poems, abounding in every Excellence but one, afford only three TRIPLETS, and a solitary Instance of the Sense overflowing the Couplet, to terminate in the Beginning of the third Line: and yet a Remark, which accompanies a Quotation from the Hind and the Panther, evinces that he was far from insensible of the latter Beauty.

I, also, will quote the exquisite Lines in Question; that they, who have so hastily asserted that POPE heightened “the Magic of “that Versification” which he acknowledged to have learned from DRYDEN, may repent at Leisure.

“ A Milk-white HIND, immortal and unchang’d,
 “ Fed on the LAWNS, and in the FOREST rang’d;
 “ Without UNSPOTTED, INNOCENT within,
 “ She fear’d no DANGER, for she knew no SIN.
 “ Yet had she oft been chas’d with Horns and Hounds,
 “ And Scythian Shafts; and many winged Wounds
 “ Aim’d at her HEART; was often forc’d to fly,
 “ And * DOOM’d to Death, though FATED not to die.”

“ These Lines are lofty, elegant, and musical, notwithstanding the Interruption of the PAUSE, of which the Effect is rather Increase of Pleasure by VARIETY than Offence by RUGGEDNESS.”

Who, on reading this judicious Observation, will not wonder that the Remarker imitated only once what he thus professes to admire?—But Wonder will subside, on recollecting that the Period when JOHNSON formed that Stile which astonished even POPE himself, by its Similitude to his own, was precisely the Period when the latter, having crushed all Opposition, reigned SOLE DICTATOR over the Commonwealth of Rhyme:—a Poem, therefore, constructed on any other Principles than those which he had established, might reasonably have despaired of a favourable Reception from the Public.

But, to return to the ALEXANDRINE.—“ It invariably requires (says JOHNSON) a Break at the sixth Syllable.”—Did not the whole Tenour of a Life, spent in the uniform Practice of almost every Christian Virtue, forbid the Supposition—I should imagine that the weak Attempt to support this strange Assertion by * The delicate Discrimination in this Line has excited the Mirth of MONTAGUE and PRIOR, in that wretched Abortion of silly Malevolence which the Spirit of Party once cried up, as a consummate Model of argumentative Acuteness, and of genteel Satire; but whose Merits TIME, who happens to be neither Whig nor Tory, has now very accurately ascertained.—“ If you, Mr. BAYES, (say these well-man-“nered and sagacious Critics,) were doom’d to be HANG’D—what you were fated to “ would be of very little Consequence.” As if doom’d and fated were really SYNONYMOUS Terms—and Execution must be the INEVITABLE Consequence of Condemnation!

Ex Pede HERCULEM!—Reader, if thou likest this Sample, (given to thee from Memory, but faithful, at least, to the “friendly Meaning,”) MIDDLE Row, in HOLBORN, may, perchance, furnish thee with the whole delectable Dialogue, between the CITY MOUSE and the COUNTRY MOUSE!

strange Authority betrayed a Consciousness of Inability to support it by Reason.—But REASON, it must be allowed, is not fully competent to decide the Dispute; for, though the Regulation of the Sense belongs entirely to the JUDGMENT, that of the Sound is more peculiarly the Province of the EAR.—POPE's Deficiency in the latter Respect was notorious; his Indifference to MUSIC is upon Record: and I am inclined to believe that the Critic bore, in that Particular, no very distant Resemblance to the Poet.

The following Examples will prove that the Break in the Alexandrine ought NOT to be invariably at the sixth Syllable; but that its Effect may be every way as powerful when it is placed at the seventh.

DRYDEN.

The ACTION, described in each of these Examples, being reserved for the Syllable immediately succeeding the PAUSE, strikes with added Force; and the sonorous ROLLING of the former, (which so singularly echoes to the SENSE,) would not have been increased, had the Line—with the Formality of a Pair of folding Doors—opened exactly in the MIDDLE.

Perhaps the Alexandrine ought GENERALLY to hinge on the sixth Syllable; and it will commonly be found that, provided that Syllable be GRAVE and the next ACUTE, the Break may be made at either of them, with equal Propriety:—but even this Rule is not INVARIABLE; for Instances may be produced, where the Custom (like that of the DANISH USURPER) “is more honoured in the Breach than the Observance.”

DRYDEN.

“Whīch, līke a wōundēd Snāke—drāgs its slōw Lēngth älōng.”

POPE.

Stark blind must that Reader be, who is not struck with the picturesque Versification of both these Lines; to which the Inver- sion of the usual Mode of accenting the SEVENTH and EIGHTH Syllables contributes, in no inferiour Degree.

But why must the Pause be confined to either of the Syllables in Debate?—And why must only one Pause be admitted?—My next Quotation will shew that, by deviating from the customary Method, one third more SENSE may be comprised within as narrow a Compass—without sustaining any Inconvenience from Want of Elbow-room.

“ Still cheerful ; ever constant to his Call ;
“ By MANY follow'd—lov'd by MOST—admir'd by ALL ! ”

DRYDEN.

And why must Lines of FOURTEEN Syllables be excluded?—Their Effect, when sparingly and skilfully introduced, is considerable—admirably calculated as they are to express NUMBER and DURATION.

“ What Help from Art's Endeavours can we have ?
“ GIBBONS but guesses, nor is sure to save :
“ But MAURUS sweeps whole Parishes—and peoples every Grave.”

DRYDEN.

“ Thy Mother well deserves that short Delight,
“ The nauseous Qualms of tēn lōng mōnthe—and TRAVAIL to requite.”

DRYDEN'S VIRGIL

Whoever attends to the accenting of the sixth, seventh, and eighth Syllables, in each Example, will find additional Reason to admire the Genius and the Taste which could raise imitative Harmony to so exalted an Height; for the Rapidity of medical Devastation in the One, and the Tedium of lingering Indisposition in the Other, are as forcibly conveyed to the Ear, by the artful Construction of the MEASURE, as they are faithfully pourtrayed to the Mind, by the appropriate Energy of the EXPRESSION.

To multiply instances would be superfluous; enough has been said, I trust, clearly to demonstrate what many have supposed to be incapable of Demonstration—viz. that POPE is not infallible, nor his BIOGRAPHER invulnerable.

If this should seem the Language of Exultation, let it be remembered that it is, likewise, the Language of Conviction; and—to repress the gathering Sneer, which an Introduction so disproportionate to the Size of the POEM may tempt—let ill-natured CRITICISM be informed, that to justify the Stile of the following Translation is but a subordinate Object: my principal Design, in this PREFATORY ESSAY, being to seize an apt Occasion—unexpectedly presented—of co-operating with those who so meritoriously endeavour to restore to DRYDENICAL PURITY that PIERIAN SPRING which POPE corrupted, and which his more daring Imitators have POISONED!

With Regard to my own Versification, I must acknowledge, that, however excellent a Mark I may have set in View, I have not the Vanity to suppose that my Success has kept Pace with my Exertions.—Whoever tries the Experiment which I have tried will find that to attempt is not to execute; and that it is more easy to admire than to emulate.—Yet, rewarded for my Labour by the Consciousness of having endeavoured well, I shall not blush, if reminded of the vast Disparity between the MODEL and the COPY.—That COPY—imperfect as it is—would have been still more imperfect, had I selected a MODEL of less distinguished Eminence; and, had I not, in Imitation of my GREAT MASTER, diversified my STILE—varied the PAUSE, ACCENT, and CADENCE—and abundantly bespangled my Verse with TRIPLETS and with ALEXANDRINES—my Performance would have appeared before the awful Tribunal of the PUBLIC with still greater Diffidence—as it would, indubitably, have preferred still humbler Claims to PARDON or to PRAISE.

An Examination of the respective Merits of a literal and of a liberal Version is not necessary; it may not, however, be improper to remark that, among the Few who have seen the Translations in Manuscript, SOME, whose Opinions I have been accustomed to revere, have given a Preference to the Blank Verse; a Circumstance which (though it surprised me) has induced me to publish both: with the pleasing Expectation of accommodating different Tastes.

If, after all, I shall be thought, in the following TRANSLATION, to have departed rather too widely from the beautiful ORIGINAL, and shall be found—in the Glow of Composition, or in the Ardour of Friendship—sometimes to have interpolated an Idea, and sometimes to have expanded a Character—it should be considered, in Extenuation, that POETRY, like ETHER, is a very subtile and volatile SPIRIT; which, (as SIR JOHN DENHAM has finely expressed it,) “in pouring from one Language to another, EVAPORATES:” and that, “if a new Spirit be not added in the Transfusion, little “more than a Caput mortuum will remain.”

That my weak Efforts toward undceiving the deluded Admirers of POPE will prove, in any Degree, successful, I dare not promise to myself.—But speedy and effectual (I am persuaded) will be the Conversion of all those Advocates for a close TRANSLATION who shall peruse MISS SEWARD’s most enchanting Amplification of HORACE’s noble Ode; inserted in the Gentleman’s Magazine for October last:—where the BRITISH POETESS towers as much above the ROMAN BARD—as she is acknowledged to do above most of her own Nation, in Beauty, Affability, Genius, Taste, Benevolence—and FILIAL PIETY!

BUTTS.

BUTTS have been in use from time immemorial, and have given names to many places where once they stood. Targets are not heard of until after 1660, and were for a long time square pasteboard covered with cloth, on which were drawn the rings of the target.

In the construction of butts, earth taken from a heath, common, or turbaryst is preferred, says Hansard, because its fibres render it more tough and adhesive than meadow turf. Butts are wedge-shaped, and taper somewhat towards the summit. Crown clods—that is to say, three pieces of sod rudely cut into the form of an urn—give a finish to the modern butt, and a piece of white pasteboard generally forms the mark. They are arranged in sets, at 4, 8, 12, and 16 rods, in this manner: 120 yards being measured, a butt 10 feet broad, 18 inches wide at the top, and about 6 feet in height, is erected at the two extremities. Thirty yards distant from one of these, and a little to the right hand, they place a second; 60 yards to the left a third; and 90 to the right a fourth,—which form a complete set, no one of which impedes the view of the others.

The Cheshire and Lancashire mode of shooting the “paper game” at butts is this:—

Seldom more than three pair of arrows are allowed on each side, which do not reckon except when within the inches—that is, when they pierce a square paper-mark of the following proportions (the weight of the arrows used at each distance is also added):—

At	4 roods or 8 "      60 "	30 yards 90 "	Inches.	Arrows.
				4	5s. 6d. silver weight. 4s. 6d.      " 3s. 6d.      " 3s. 6d.      "
12 "	90 "	12	8	4s. 6d.	"
16 "	120 "	16	12	3s. 6d.	"

Seven the game. No lurch.

The archers usually draw lots to determine the order in which they shall shoot. Each maintains his original place during the contest, without reference to the position of his arrows. The diminutive size of the clout renders a marker necessary at the 12 and 16 rood length. Like the person who attends for a similar purpose during Swiss rifle-matches, he stands near the butt, holding in his hand a white wand, which is placed for a few moments near each arrow. The signs made use of also much resemble those of his Alpine brother.

For the best arrow, the wand is thrice shaken above his head; second ditto, the same towards the ground. When the paper is pricked, he uncovers and bows—for the outer circle once, the white twice, the pin thrice. For over arrows the wand moves briskly upwards, for wide arrows horizontally, for short arrows downwards. Such appears to have been the usage of centuries.—(Hansard's Book of Archery.)

THE FOREST HALL.

The Forest Hall consisted, as originally constructed, of a room 39 feet 6 inches by 24 feet 6 inches, lighted on the north by three French windows with circular tops. The corners are cut off, and the four doors in the angles give admission, on the east side to a gentleman's dressing - room, with lavatories, &c. (this was much enlarged in 1882), and at the south-west end to a kitchen with offices; while the north-west angle has a room for the Secretary. These again open into a larger hall, added in 1845, used as a dining - room and ball - room, adjoining to which are a suite of dressing-rooms for ladies. At the east end of the old room is the marble bust by Flaxman of the first Lord Warden, representing him in the attitude of drawing a bow at the long distance; while in a corresponding position at the west end of the other room is a bust (presented in 1811) of the first Secretary, Mr Digby, by Nollekens. Round the old room are the Aschams, of Forest oak, each emblazoned with the device of its present or some former owner. Upon the walls are ancient bows and arrows, mostly oriental, presented at various times; and a curious curved horn, covered with leather, is preserved in the hall. In the centre compartment of the upper portion of the middle window is a curious piece of tinted glass, of the style in vogue in Germany in the sixteenth century, representing a man drawing a bow, and with six arrows in his belt. He is dressed in a surcoat over red sleeves, wears a bracer, and buskins on his legs; near him stands a youth in a jerkin, who holds an arrow; while at a short distance, in a thicket of trees, is seen the face of a man, apparently crouching or wounded. The subject of this painting is obscure, but it may possibly represent Gandelyn avenging the death of his master Robin Hood upon the keeper Wrennok.—See Ritson's Robin Hood.

GRAND MEETING OF ARCHERS,
HELD AT BLACKHEATH, MAY 26, 1790.

Friday last the Second Grand Annual Meeting of the Archers of Great Britain was held on Blackheath. At eleven the Archers began to assemble at their marquees, and to fix their colours to their respective ones. At twelve, the bugle-horn having sounded, they marched, preceded by an excellent band of music, to the plain, where twelve pair of targets were pitched; and having taken their stands, the shooting immediately commenced, which continued till three, when the horn sounding again, they marched in form to the marquees, where cold refreshment was prepared for each Society and their friends. Half an hour only was allowed for the Archers to partake of it, when the shooting was resumed, and the contest for the prizes continued till six, when they were divided as follows: That for the greatest number of arrows in the target to Mr William Palmer, that for the second number to Mr Thomas Palmer, both Woodmen of Arden; that for the most centrical shot to Mr John Brady, Kentish Ranger. The appearance was uncommonly handsome—the plain on which the targets were pitched commanding an extensive view of a rich country. The uniform of the different Societies of Archers, their regular form in shooting and marching, together with the manliness of the exercise, rendered the whole a spectacle delightful and pleasing. The company were numerous and of the first fashion. The business of the day being over, the Archers adjourned to Willis's Rooms, in King Street, St James's, where an elegant dinner was prepared; and they spent the evening, as they did the day, with the utmost harmony and conviviality. The gentlemen selected to conduct the meeting, and to whom every praise is due for their attention were,—C. Spens, Esq., Royal Edinburgh Archer; Philip Constable, Hon. Artillery Company; J. Dent, Esq., Toxophilite; Hon. Harry Fitzroy, Royal Kentish Bowman; Charles Phillips, Esq., Royal British Bowman; Thomas Palmer, Esq., Woodman of Arden; William Clay, Esq., Robin Hood's Man; M. Davis, Esq., Loyal Archer. Archers from seventeen different Societies appeared on the ground.—(From the Public Advertiser.)

GRAND MEETING OF ARCHERS,
HELD AT BLACKHEATH, MAY 28, 1791.

The different Societies of Archers met yesterday on Blackheath, to shoot for two gold and silver medals, to be given to the best marksmen. The company assembled on the Heath to see this diversion was very numerous, and the fineness of the day contributed in no small degree to render the effect of the sight extremely pleasing. The gentlemen seemed to have very much improved in the science since last year, and there were a number of palpable hits. The Woodmen of Arden seemed to be the most expert at the bow. At three o'clock the gentlemen retired to their tents to partake of a cold collation, to which several ladies were invited. At four they resumed their sport, which continued till six in the afternoon, when they returned to town and spent the evening with great festivity in Willis's Rooms. The tents were fancifully decorated with banners, proudly displaying the devices of the various Orders of Archery.

There were two-and-thirty targets erected on the ground, and about a dozen archers fixed to shoot at each.

Mr Ricketts of the Toxophilites shot nearest the centre, and was the Captain of the Target.

Lord Aylesford having shot sixteen different times into the target, was destined the Captain of Numbers. The young archers beat the old ones out of the field, in point of skill and numbers.

The Loyal Archers shot once into the bull's-eye of the target, the Yorkshire Archers once, the Toxophilite Society twice, the Robin Hood once, and the Woodmen of Hornsey twice.—(From Aris Birmingham Gazette.)

GRAND MEETING OF ARCHERS,

HELD AT BLACKHEATH, MAY 29, 1792.

At noon the Archers, clothed in Kendal green, met at their respective tents, which were pitched in a line fronting the south. Immediately opposite these, fourteen pair of targets ranged from north to south, 100 yards apart; and they appeared in the following order, when reckoned downwards from the front of the tents:—

- Surrey Bowmen; two sets of targets.
- St George's Bowmen.
- Royal Kentish Bowmen; two sets of targets.
- The Toxophilite Society.
- Archers Division of the Artillery Company.
- Woodmen of Arden.
- Robin Hood's Bowmen; two sets of targets.
- Woodmen of Hornsey.
- Bowmen of Chevy Chase.
- Suffolk Bowmen.

[N.B.—Only thirteen pair of targets are accounted for in this list.]

The following programme of the day's amusements was published by authority of the Stewards:—

GENERAL ORDERS.

At eleven o'clock the leaders of the targets are to arrange the Archers to shoot at their respective marks, and to set down their names.

No greater number than TEN to shoot at any one pair of targets.

Two arrows to be shot at each end.

Two target papers to be kept at each target.

At twelve the shooters to form a line in front of the tents, in the order of shooting. The signal for forming the line to be a march of the music, playing the whole length of the tents. The line being formed, the command to face the right and march to be given by three strokes of the kettle-drums.

The different Societies will then proceed to their respective targets, and begin shooting when the music ceases. The leader of each target to advance ten paces when his party have done shooting, and proceed to the opposite target on hearing the bands, which will continue playing until the shooting commences.

At three, refreshments to be taken into the tents.

The signal to go into the tents will be by the music halting in the centre of the ground until the arrows are collected, when each Society will fall into its own station. The line will then be formed, and the Archers are to march back to their respective tents—the same signal being used as for the march to the targets.

At half-past three the reopening of the targets will be announced by a repetition of the signals before used.

At six the shooting will cease by the same signal as before used for going to refresh; the whole line to halt in front of the tents, while the Stewards collect the target papers; the Archers are then to be dismissed, and to proceed to dinner. Tickets to be collected at the door of the dining-room, and the Societies to be seated according to seniority—the Stewards making the arrangements.

Amongst those who especially distinguished themselves by gallant attention to their fair visitors, I will not omit to name the Royal Artillery Archers, whose tent was lined throughout with green silk; and Robin Hood's Bowmen, for they had provided theirs with a temporary flooring of boards. Their uniform also attracted universal attention, as being the most elegant and appropriate in the whole field. The honours of the day fell thick upon this Society, since out of the four prizes they became entitled to three—two being won by —— Anderson, Esq., as Captain of Numbers and Lieutenant of the Target; the third fell to the lot of R. Glenn, Esq., as Lieutenant of Numbers. The Captain of the Target was a Woodman of Arden.<sup>1</sup>

Among the nobility present, Lord Aylesford distinguished himself by some very close shooting: indeed the exploits of the day, taken as a whole, stand high in the annals of modern Archery. The Captain of Numbers above mentioned placed thirty-three arrows in the target, and the second in command twenty-four. On every former occasion the highest number had never exceeded twenty-one. It is remarkable that Mr Anderson, who bore away the most considerable prize, should have been a Fleming; and though but of middling stature, shot with a Flemish long-bow of six feet three inches. In September 1795, shooting with the Woodmen of Arden, he gained a Captaincy of Numbers.<sup>1</sup>—(From Hansard's Book of Archery.)

MEETING NEAR HIGHGATE.

At a meeting held at Mr Anderson's grounds, near Highgate, in September 1792, various members of the Royal Toxophilites, Robin Hood's Bowmen, and Woodmen of Arden shot. The shooting lasted three hours, when T. Palmer, Esq., of the Woodmen, won the medal for the central shot; and Dr Haworth, a Royal Toxophilite, won that for the greatest number of prizes. The figure of an eagle fixed on a perch 140 feet high was shot at for about an hour, affording much amusement from its novelty; at the expiration of that time Mr Peacock, Robin Hood's Bowmen, shot it off the perch, and thereby won a gold medal.

After dining with his friends in the lodge, Mr Anderson amused them with fireworks emblematical of the Archery of the day.—(From Toxophilite Records.)

CANNOCK CHASE MEETING.

1791.

Though the weather was rather unfavourable, the Archery meeting at Eitchinhill, near Rugeley, was all the week attended by a great assemblage of ladies and gentlemen of the first distinction. The Woodmen of Arden and Broughton (as Warwickshire Archers) and the Lancashire Bowmen shot three grand matches on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. The Lancashire Archers won on Wednesday and Friday, and the Warwickshire Archers on Thursday; these three days were well contested on both sides. The ladies shot till dinner-time on Wednesday and Thursday; they made a very beautiful appearance, and the whole was a sight truly elegant. The Archers and company were very much satisfied with the spot of ground, which they have taken for seven years. The Annual Meeting will be held the first Monday in every July in future, and is expected to be as numerous and splendid as any similar one in England. The gentlemen and ladies breakfasted and dined in their booth every day, and the gentlemen Archers continued shooting till nine o'clock at night. Among the most expert archers were the Earl of Aylesford, Lord Grey de Wilton, Sir Nigel Gresley, Thackeray, Palmer, Travis, Tippin, Walker, Moland, Dilke, Hindley, Adderley, and Starkey, Esqs. Miss Curzon was the Lady Patroness of the meeting.

The number of casts got by each Archer during the whole match were as under:—

—From Aris Birmingham Gazette, July 11, 1791.

It does not appear that any public record is preserved of the proceedings in 1792, although Hansard's 'Book of Archery' states that at a meeting in July of that year a silver bow was shot for at a distance of 100 yards by the gentlemen of the United Society of Bowmen; while in the diary of Mr Digby (of Meriden Hall) occurs this entry: "July 3 to 7.—Archery meeting at Hagley. Mr Thackeray won Silver Bow." (Hagley, which adjoins Rugeley, was then the seat of Lord Curzon.)

A little volume of regulations for these meetings, from the title-page of which the vignette on title is taken, gives some curious details and names of interest.

DODD'S 'BALLADS OF ARCHERY.'

Among the guests entertained at the Forest Hall, August 24, 1789, appears the name of the Rev. James William Dodd, a Kentish Bowman, who held the post of second Usher of Westminster School. Jemmy Dodd, as the Westminster boys styled him, seems to have been of a convivial turn, with a pretty knack for parody and rhyme, rather than original poetry. On the title-page of his little volume, published in 1818 under the title of 'Ballads of Archery,' stands the characteristic motto from Ascham's 'Toxophilus'—

"Both merie songes and good shootinge delighteth Apollo;"

and in his preface he feelingly refers to the old author of the 'Toxophilus' as "his predecessor in bowmanry and scholastic drudgery." What circumstances induced him, after so long an interval, to publish the ditties written for the festive meetings of a defunct Society, are not stated; but the volume derives an additional interest from being illustrated with pretty little woodcuts, the work of a Worcestershire gentleman, the late Sir Edmund Lechmere, then at school at Westminster. It is also accompanied by tunes to several of the ballads, which no doubt were chanted in the Forest Hall to the delight of the Woodmen of that day.

He died in the same year (1818) in which his poems were published, aged fifty-seven, and is commemorated by a monument in the east cloister of Westminster Abbey.

EXTRACT FROM THE MINUTE-BOOK OF THE TOXOPHILITE SOCIETY.

Extra Target, 26th July 1839.—After dinner (an incessant rain fell throughout the day, and it was found impossible to proceed with the shooting; nevertheless the medals were awarded) the Chairman, W. B. Agot, Esq., V. P., called the attention of the meeting to an infraction of Rule 29 (prohibiting the practice of any game or pastime except archery within the Society's grounds), which had been committed in the course of the day by three members present at table, inasmuch as he, the said Chairman, had been a witness to Captain J. N. Orton, Messrs R. O. Binson and Wood Ruffe, actively engaged in a certain diversion commonly known under the name of pitch-and-toss, under the very porch of the Society's Lodge.

Motion made and question put,—That it be an instruction to the Committee that they have cause to put in effect the power of fine vested in them by Rule 12. Members divided,—Ayes 8; Noes 3. Whereupon such of the Committee as were present—Mr Chairman, V.P., Mr Treasurer, the Hon. D. F. Inch, Mr Secretary, Glen F. Layson, Esq., Mr Sub-Treasurer, H. P. R. Menter, Esq., and S. Green Kinsen, Esq.—deliberated. Motion made by Mr Treasurer and question put,—That the delinquents be each fined in the sum of half-a-crown. Amendment proposed by Mr Secretary,—That the Chairman be further requested to admonish the transgressors in a manner suitable to the very great gravity of the offence. At this point information was conveyed to the Committee that the Chairman had throughout acted as umpire in the illegal pastime in question, and therefore was particeps criminis by giving advice, opinions, and decisions on sundry critical points of the play. The Chairman in some sort admitted the charge. Mr Secretary's amendment (with leave) immediately withdrawn. Motion of Mr Treasurer also (with leave) withdrawn, and the following substituted, and question put,—That the members infractors of Rule 29 be fined 1s. each, and the Chairman 2s. 6d. Agreed to. The Sub-Treasurer was instructed to collect the fines, which were forthwith duly paid.

(The names above given will be easily read as Bagot, Norton, Robinson, Woodruffe, D. Finch, Glen Finlayson, H. Parmenter, and S. Green Wilkinson.)
